

2016 -2017 Utah's "Do the Write Thing" Challenge INSTRUCTIONS FOR CLASSROOM TEACHERS

Introduction

Thank you for involving your 7th and 8th grade students in the 2017 Utah Do the Write Thing Challenge. All across America, students are rising to the challenge of doing something to end youth violence. The Challenge offers middle school students the opportunity to examine the impact of youth violence on their lives, and to communicate in writing what they think should be done to change the culture of violence.

The Challenge emphasizes personal responsibility by encouraging students to make personal commitments to do something about the problems related to violence. The program ultimately seeks to give students the opportunity to break the cycle of violence in their homes, schools and neighborhoods. Your involvement and support are crucial to the success of the Challenge in Utah.

Carefully review the following materials concerning program rules, entry deadlines, judging criteria, classroom discussion, and student recognition before presenting the program to your students—and to be sure your students' writings will not be disqualified.

Program Rules

- Students may use any form of written expression (e.g., essays, poems, plays or songs), as long as the language is positive and not derogatory. Students may submit only one entry per year. All entries must be the work product of only one student.
- Student entries, at minimum, must address these three questions:
 - How has youth violence affected my life?
 - What are the causes of youth violence?
 - What can I do about youth violence?

Writings that do not address these questions will not be advanced in the selection process.

- Entries should be 500 to 1000 words in length. Poetry/song may be shorter and contain fewer than 500 words.
- Entries must be in English.

- Proper citation is required if the student uses a quote or another person's materials in his or her entry. Writings based upon plagiarism will not be advanced in the selection process.
- Entries must be typed or written legibly in black ink on 8-1/2" x 11" paper. Only one side of the paper may be used and the pages should be numbered. Do not staple writings. Instead, use a paper clip to hold the writing together.
- Do not include personal information (e.g., name, school, teacher, etc.) on the body of the written entry. This information should only be included on the entry form.
- Collect all the students' writings for submission. The provided "Student Entry Form" must accompany each student submission and both the student and the parent, or guardian must sign it. Entries without a signed "Student Entry Form" will be disqualified from the judging process. (See attached Entry Form with the Student and Parent/Guardian Consent Statement. Only use attached form or from www.juvenile.utah.gov site only).
- Paper-clip each of the students' individual writings to its entry form.
- Teachers are to select the top four (4) writings (2 boys and 2 girls) from each class period, make four (4) photocopies of these writings. Create a submission package for each class period. Place the top four at the beginning of the package followed by the rest of the students' writings.
- Editing of content, grammar or spelling by someone other than the student is not permitted. Only original student entries are eligible to be submitted by the teacher. Grammar and spelling are not considered in the scoring matrix.
- One completed "Teacher Survey" is required from each teacher. Please fill out the teacher survey completely, including the questions regarding the total number of students who participated in classroom discussion, the number of writings collected and the number of writings submitted.

Submission Deadline

The entry submission deadline is Friday, December 9, 2016. Entries must be postmarked by Friday December 9th 2016. Send these items to the following addresses by any of the indicated delivery services:

Selection Criteria

Entries will be reviewed by Utah's Do the Write Thing Committee and VIP judges. Last year's VIP judges included: Miss Utah, Krissia Beatty; Ms. Katherine Decker of the Beesley Foundation; Olympic Gold Medalist, Derek Parra; Bobsled Athlete, Jeremy Holm; Salt Lake County Mayor, Ben McAdams; Third District Juvenile Court Judge, Renee Jimenez; ABC4 News Reporter, Jason Nguyen; Interim SLC Police Chief, Mike Brown; 2015 National Finalist, Chey'lyn Nagel, 2014 National Finalist, Cora Rasmuson; CCJJ Executive Director, Ronald B. Gordon, Jr.; Kathy Younker of the Wheeler Foundation; Juvenile Justice Services Director, Susan Burke; and members of the Utah Board of Juvenile Justice. Entries will be judged based on content, originality and responsiveness to the three questions:

How has youth violence affected my life? What are the causes of youth violence? What can I do about youth violence?

Grammar and spelling will not be used as criteria for judging entries, as this is an anti-violence initiative and the priority is to encourage students to examine the aspects of youth violence.

Encourage your students to describe what they feel are the causes of youth violence and offer specific suggestions about what they as individuals can do to reduce youth violence in their homes, schools and neighborhoods. Personal responsibility for responding to the problem of youth violence should be emphasized. Students who share personal experiences about the impact of youth violence on their lives and the lives of their peers consistently receive top scores—for these reasons fictional stories are highly discouraged. The panel of judges will be looking at how well your students present their views on these matters and scoring will be based on the following criteria:

Category 1	Question Responsiveness
Category 2	Content/Ideas
Category 3	Originality/Voice/Honesty

Classroom Discussion

Classroom discussion is not mandatory for participation in the Challenge. However, over the years we have found that participating students and their teachers gain much from the connections that result from exchanges about the impact of youth violence that occur in pre-writing classroom discussions. Teachers relate their amazement at the openness and honesty of classroom discussions. These discussions present excellent opportunities to identify and prevent youth problems before they reach a critical level.

Many teachers whose classes have participated in the Challenge have invited speakers knowledgeable about youth violence issues to lead pre-writing discussions. Other teachers have provided their students with selected readings or newspaper articles about youth violence in advance of the discussion to stimulate thought. Speakers or articles that emphasize personal responsibility on the part of students for responding to the problems of youth violence, prove to be particularly useful.

The National Campaign to Stop Violence website (www.dtwt.org) has a discussion paper on the causes of and solutions for youth violence and other national resources that are helpful. The discussion paper is based upon writings of national finalists from the 2000 Challenge. Feel free to download and copy this material for classroom use or use any of the other materials available on the website.

Utah's Do the Write Thing Challenge website (www.juvenile.utah.gov) includes several lesson plans and prior years Utah State Finalist books.

Consider the following sample questions to generate discussion among your students before they prepare their entries for the Challenge:

- How does youth violence affect your daily life?
- Where are you confronted with youth violence? Your home? Your school? Your neighborhood?
- What are some of the causes of youth violence in your community?
- What can you as an individual do to reduce youth violence in your community?

Common Core Standard

As of August 2011, the Do the Write Thing Challenge has been reviewed by a panel of highly qualified public school teachers. The Challenge has been aligned to meet all of the English Language Arts Standards in Writing for Grades 7 and 8 (Standards W.7.1 - W7.10 and W8.1 - W8.10). Please note that we have determined Standards W.7.2 and W.8.2 to only be applicable to nonfiction submissions.

Student Recognition

Local Level:

Participating schools must submit all writings from each individual participating classroom to the Utah Board of Juvenile Justice. However, only the top four writings (2 boys and 2 girls) from each classroom period, as identified by the teacher, will be considered for the selection process. Each writing will be read a minimum three times by students from local universities. The highest average score for the first round of reading will be selected from each region, and then forwarded to the Utah Board of Juvenile Justice. From those entries, the Board will select final entries for VIP judging.

State Level:

The Utah Board of Juvenile Justice hosts a recognition luncheon in late April (usually the last Friday of the month) to honor the finalists. The finalists, students' parents, teacher and principal will be invited to attend the recognition luncheon.

Two "National Finalists" or "Ambassadors" will be announced at the recognition luncheon. Our Do the Write Thing VIP Judges will select the boy and girl from Utah who submit the most thought provoking entries.

The Board will also publish the writing of finalists, as well as honorable mentions and will be placed in the Library of Congress. In addition, the Board will distribute the publication to community, business and governmental leaders as well as the national Do the Write Thing Campaign. This book will also be posted on the Board's website: www.juvenile.utah.gov.

National Level:

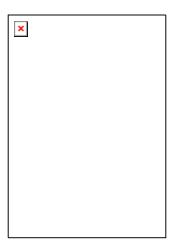

The two National Finalists, or Ambassadors, along with their teacher and one parent or guardian will be invited by the National Campaign to Stop Violence to attend the National Recognition Week in Washington, DC in July 2017.

The majority of the costs for the National Recognition Week activities will be paid by the primary sponsors: the Kuwait-America Foundation and the Kuwait Foundation for the Advancement of Science. The Utah Board of Juvenile Justice as state sponsor will pay part of the travel costs. The people of Kuwait have donated money to the Do the Write Thing Campaign for over 20 years. This has been done to say thank you to the American people for the liberation of Kuwait in 1991.

During past National Recognition Weeks, Ambassadors have met with a United States Supreme Court Judge, the United States Secretary of Education, the Attorney General of the United States, the United States Secretary of Interior, Members of Congress and many notable celebrities to discuss the problem of youth violence. A highlight of the National Recognition Week is placing a book of the writings of the 2017 student national ambassadors in the Library of Congress, ensuring that the students' words will be available to all and for future generations. In addition, students have been honored at embassy receptions hosted by the State of Kuwait.

Do the Write Thing and Common Core State Standards

Writing is the core component of the "Do the Write Thing" Challenge (DtWT). After classroom discussions about youth violence, participating middle school students are asked by their teachers to make a commitment not to be involved in violence and provide written answers to three questions:

- 1. How has violence affected my life?
- 2. What are the causes of youth violence?
- 3. What can I do to reduce youth violence?

The DtWT experience is flexible, allowing for adaptation as needed by school districts and individual classrooms. Thus, the writing component of DtWT can cover significant portions of the Common Core State Standards for English Language Arts:

Writing

Essays that include a narrative component, such as those that address the first question, can fulfill 3.A-E for grades 6, 7, and 8.

Essays that address the second two questions can fulfill 1.A-E, 2.A-F, 7, 8, and 9 for grades 6, 7, and 8.

All essays can be used to fulfill 4 for grades 6, 7, and 8.

Depending on the level of teacher involvement in students' writing for the DtWT Challenge, the program can be used to fulfill 5 (peer review), 6 (technology), and 10 (writing over a range of time and revision) for grades 6, 7, and 8.

Speaking and Listening

Classroom discussions, before and after presenting DtWT can be used to fulfill 1.B-D for grades 6, 7, and 8.
